Vision Statement

PRYM is a web app that connects those who want to purchase a portion of the meat of a cow (a process called “cow sharing”). Currently, those interested in purchasing a portion of a cow with no group have to go out and find people to share with on their own; addressing this issue, PRYM is designed to be an easily accessible system that brings together communities of people and allows them to match together for cow sharing.

This system is designed for use by both people who would like to buy portions of cows (the buyer), and the farmers who are selling them. The buyer will use this app to connect with other buyers to share a cow with, and to then decide with their group their individual cuts of the animal. The seller (farmers) will use this as a platform to showcase their farms and connect with buyers.

It will allow buyers to sign up with a buyers account, and then create a profile based on their preferences for buying (what sort of cuts they want, if they want grass-fed or pasture-raised cows, how much meat they want, etc.). They will then be matched with the groups that best fit their criteria, and allowed to review them and choose their favourite. They will also have the ability to leave a group and change to a new one and if they feel their current group does not fit them, they may choose from the page again. They can also change their profile at any time, after which they can be shown groups that fit with their new criteria.

After finding a group, users will be put into a group chat where they can easily communicate with each other to decide on how to share the cow. Once the group has come to a decision, they will then be able to look at a page of farms that best align with the group’s preferences. After reviewing the farms among themselves, they will be able to select a farm and be connected with them. Farms will be able to sign in with a sellers =account that allows them to create a sellers profile. This will contain information about things like general farm information and location, cattle type, cattle feeding method, prices, contact information, etc. This information will then be made into a page and added to a space where buyers can browse through them.

Currently, many people interested in cow share do not have groups to share with, and finding a group can be difficult (having to first find people, then agree on amounts everyone wants, finding people who match well with your needs). This discourages many people from doing a cow share, despite their want. PRYM allows individuals to sign up and easily find a well matched group of people where everyone can buy based on their preferences and reduce compromise. As needs change for users, they can also easily find new groups of people who fit their new preferences. This is a significant improvement from word-of-mouth procedures, and should make cow sharing much more accessible to those interested.

This system will be considered a success if farmers report an increase in buyers for cow shares, showing whether PRYM has made purchasing cow shares easier and more accessible. Another metric of success will be whether users report satisfaction with the technology and consider it to have improved their cow sharing experience.

Key plan changes:

- We changed some responsibilities around since it was easier for example to have the person who setup the database also do the signup and login, however everyone kept the same load.
- One design decision we made was that we will have common user functionality stay together on one page and buyer/seller specific functionality be on other pages. This makes it easier to manage the program
- The previous point made us add a new user story to be implemented in ITR2
- Other than that everything is going well and we are getting stuff done on time.
